LOS COLORES DEL CARACOL

LOS RESIDENTES DE LA PENÍNSULA CARACOL, A.C.

Kumbaya....

In past newsletters, we have focused primarily on the infrastructure of the Caracol Peninsula. The electrical, water, roads and sewer. These things are important, but they are only part of what makes the Caracol a community. The residents, their homes, cars and the workers that keep everything running on the hill, are crucial components also. The installation of the new Adoquin on much of the Caracol roads has given many residents the incentive to get out and walk. The smooth roads encourage people to move about and meet their neighbors. For the first time in many years, we see groups of people walking the hill and interacting with each other. Familiarity with our community makes us mindful of activities taking place on the hill. We notice construction projects that are underway. We are aware of residents who are here and those who have gone north. We are conscious of the cars and people we see daily. Belonging to a community provides context to what is, and is not out of place. This commonality of our surroundings allows us to look out for each other, increasing everyone's safety and security on the hill. Don't hesitate to call the Police (Policía Municipal)—Comisaría de San Carlos—226-1400 if something looks out of place. It's your community. Help yourselves and others by sharing time, advice and resources to make the Caracol the prominent San Carlos neighborhood.

September marks the beginning of the return of many residents to the hill. We hope to have a traditional welcome back gathering (as well as a Soggy peso "meet up") for all of the residents in the coming months. More on that in the next newsletter.
